Judge overrules directed verdict in Bennett trial

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
The trial of Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry J. Bennett on fraud charges continued Wednesday afternoon after Circuit Judge James Thomas overruled defense attorney Joe Sam Owen's request for a directed verdict.

At that point, the state had presented five witnesses: Robert L. King, chief investigator for the Mississippi Ethics Commission; Ernest Applewhite, president of Sanitary Landfill Inc.; Mary Daggett of Pascagoula, bookkeeper for Sanitary Landfill; William Harrison (Buddy) Stevenson, superintendent for Site Construction Co.; and James Troy Bennett, carpenter.

The jury has spent much of the time outside the courtroom while attorneys argued about the admissibility of witnesses' testimony and documentary evidence.

Owen pled several times to be given a chance to present his case, having said during jury selection that the case had been highlighted by the news media and saying "I have yet to see an article written about a crime where it's slanted to the side of the accused."

"I don't mind his trying his case," Johnson countered, "but I'd like him to do it within the bounds of relevancy."

Bennett is on trial for allegedly defrauding the city by using labor and materials from a street sewer repair project for work on an addition to his home in the summer of 1978.

The attorneys stipulated that the City of Bay St. Louis paid Sanitary Landfill Inc. for sewer work in the amount of $14,582.

The prosecution alleges that about $1,250 of that amount was for work done at the Bennett home.

King testified Tuesday afternoon that he had investigated the matter and had collected documents from City Clerk Edward Favre and from bookkeeper Daggett.

On cross-examination, King said that the investigation resulted from "sworn complaints" against the mayor, Police Chief Douglas Williams and, later, City Attorney William Gex.

Applewhite testified that Sanitary Landfill bid on the sewer repair project and sub-contracted the work to Site Construction Co.

He said that Donn Murray was city inspector for the project, and Site Construction Co. employee William Stevenson was superintendent for the project.

Both Applewhite and Daggett said they had difficulty testifying about documents because King had taken them away and never returned them.

Daggett testified that she did the payroll work for the sewer project, based on time sheets that were given to her weekly, and that she issued paychecks

CITIZENS OBJECT—Mike Reynolds, a Jourdan River resident, voices his objections Monday night to a Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District proposal to extend outfall lines from Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewage treatment facilities to the river. Some 100 citizens packed the Waveland Library conference room for the public hearing in which comments were received regarding long-range plans for Hancock County wastewater treatment. Anti-pollution official says:

State to advise Waveland district to seek alternate wastewater outfall sites

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A state agency plans to recommend the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District consider another discharge point for Waveland and Bay St. Louis sewage treatment plant outfall lines.

Barry Royals, State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control Water Division chief, said Wednesday that the BPC will recommend to the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District that it "reevaluate its discharge points and look at someplace else, if possible" for the outfall lines.

The district is presently proposing extending the two outfalls, the Bay line from Edwards Bayou and the Waveland line from Watts Bayou, to Jourdan River near the Bay of St. Louis.

However, about 100 angry home owners in that area jammed into the Waveland Library conference room at a Monday night public hearing and about half of them voiced their opposition to the Jourdan outfall location for Waveland.

The purpose of the hearing was to air public comments regarding the district's "201 Plan" to treat Hancock County sewage during the next 30 years and the "208 Plan" proposing a countywide management scheme.

Many of those at the hearing objected to a lack of public information regarding details of the plans.

The hearing, its purpose and the availability of the plans for public inspection was advertised in the form of a legal notice in three recent issues of The Sea Coast Echo.

Regarding the Jourdan outfalls, Royals said the reevaluation may also result in the lines discharging into the Jourdan in an area "not close to homes."

CHECKING FOR ORIGIN OF FIRE—Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizzana checks electrical wiring at the Super Rich Deli Shop early Tuesday morning after a fire gutted the building. Lizzana said the fire department received a call from Eric Pollock, a resident of a nearby mobile home, reporting the fire. Edward Nease, operator of the deli, then Marty Dombert and Matthew Nease were asleep in an upstairs apartment and were awakened by a Bay St. Louis fire alarm siren. Lizzana said the fire originated in the kitchen area of the deli. The deli was a small, one-story building. The deli and apartment were removed with the exception of the deli's front entrance. The deli and apartment is owned by Lizzana. The deli was a small, one-story building. The deli and apartment were removed with the exception of the deli's front entrance. NOAA official at NSTL says:

U.S. hurricane tracking capabilities improved after successful Gulf test

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Data Buoy Office official reports that a successful Wednesday morning test of four air-dropped drifting data buoys in the Gulf of Mexico means the government is ready to provide more accurate hurricane data.

Jay Howe of Waveland, public affairs officer of the U.S. Department of Commerce NOAA office at the National Space Technology Laboratories, Wednesday afternoon said that at about 9:30 a.m. the crew of a C-130 turbo-prop jet of the 615th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron (air reserve "storm trackers") at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi dropped four of the disposable buoys by parachute into the Gulf just north of the Chandeleur Islands.

Dr. Jerry McCall of Gulfport, NOAA office director, explained in a Keesler press conference Tuesday afternoon that the test would determine if it is feasible for the Air Force to air-drop the buoys in the path of hurricanes to obtain more accurate information regarding storm intensity and direction.

The "satellite-reporting" buoys will collect true surface wind speeds, temperature, wave height and barometric pressure to improve the storm-warning capabilities of the National Weather Service, he said.

Howe reported the test devices, in aluminum casings resembling large golf tees, were dropped near a NOAA Ocean Test Platform for data comparison purposes and then recovered for stress evaluations.

He noted NOAA in the past has relied on instrument readings from ships near and in storms, but usually there are few vessels remaining to gather this detailed information.

Howe said the Wednesday morning test involved deployment of four test buoys, every 37 seconds from an altitude of 1,500 feet, containing various configurations of instruments and equipment and weighing from 200 to 500 pounds each.

But in an actual hurricane tracking effort, three buoys would be deployed at the same altitude about 100 miles from a hurricane in its predicted path, Howe explained.

Then after the storm overtakes the three, another trio of buoys would be deployed ahead of the storm utilizing the same procedure, he said.

McCall said these buoys would then periodically transmit data to polar-orbiting satellites which would then relay that information to forecasters of the National Hurricane Center.

McCall said the battery-powered buoys, which cost from $6,000 to $10,000 (depending on the type of equipment installed), would probably survive a hurricane and continue to transmit data from where ever they float for as long as one year to 18 months.

He noted the buoys also are not tethered to the ship, and the buoys are not attached to the ship's deck.

The buoys are designed to recover themselves after the test. The buoys are designed to recover themselves after the test. The buoys are designed to recover themselves after the test. The buoys are designed to recover themselves after the test.

Fair train plans said reported prematurely

By EDGAR PEREZ
A Mississippi representative on the National Railroad Commission said late Wednesday reports from Washington that the federal government is planning to build a train line from Waveland, Conn. to New Orleans, La., are premature.

The train will depart Mobile in the early morning, stopping at the four Mississippi cities before arriving in New Orleans near the fair site.

A return trip to Mobile will be made daily in the late afternoon. Amtrak officials reportedly announced Wednesday that there is still a lot of work to be done. Wilcox

SALES TAX HIKE

A one percent increase in the state retail sales tax from five to six percent authorized by the 1983 Mississippi Legislature in a Special Session on educational improvements is effective today.

Shoppers can expect to pay the new six percent rate on all purchases made beginning Thursday, Dec. 1, according to the Mississippi State Tax Commission.

TRAILER OWNER FOUND

A United States Marine, who was enroute from Texas to North Carolina was the owner of a U-Haul full of household furnishings found in a wooded area of Logtown on Thanksgiving day by hunters, according to Delbert Seay, Hancock County investigator. John P. Storey, the owner, reported he had stopped in Slidell at a motel when the U-Haul was stolen. He picked up the trailer on Wednesday morning.

"Peanuts" has come to my house to stay, a Thanksgiving gift from grandsons Bill and Brian McGuire. The boys, now in their teens, have had a succession of cats named "Peanuts" through the years, and this grandma is quite pleased that they would give her one of their prized "Peanuts."

The boys were fearful that the tawny little cat might be troublesome to me on the drive home from Mandeville, where I had spent the Thanksgiving weekend with the family, so they drove over after school on Tuesday, to deliver Peanuts to his new home... and we are quite content together. He's excellent company.

So, in honor of my new companion — and also because chicken is, of course, one of his favorite foods, I'm cooking up a chicken dish using peanut butter, a sort of "soul food" dish. Here's:

CHICKEN IN

PEANUT BUTTER SAUCE

One 2½ to 3 lb. frying chicken, cut into serving pieces

2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 16-oz. jar peanut butter, creamy or crunchy, to your taste

2 cups water
Pepper, cayenne, to taste
Dash of hot pepper sauce
Garlic powder if desired
Season the chicken and brown in the butter or margarine in your heavy skillet. Meanwhile, put the peanut butter into another large skillet or Dutch oven. Add the water, just a little at a time, stirring constantly till smooth. Add the chicken, along with the juices.

Simmer, covered, for about an hour, stirring from time to time. Just before serving, remove the chicken to a platter, and add a little chopped green onion to the skillet, along with a little water if the sauce is too thick, and heat well. Serve over rice. (4 to 6 servings.)

And here's another:
HONEY AND PEANUT BUTTER CHICKEN

6 chicken thighs
6 chicken drumsticks
1/3 cup smooth peanut butter

2 Tbsp. honey
1 cup evaporated milk
6 Tbsp. cornmeal
6 Tbsp. flour

¼ cup butter or margarine
Dashes of pepper, salt if desired
Melt the butter or margarine in a baking pan then remove from oven. Meanwhile, mix together the peanut butter, honey and milk until smooth, and set aside for a moment or so. Combine the cornmeal, flour, and seasonings.

Dip the chicken in the peanut butter mixture, then in the cornmeal-flour mixture, coating well. Place in the baking pan and bake for 15 to 20 minutes at 375 degrees, then turn the chicken and bake for about 15 to 20 minutes more (Six servings.)

As a change from pecan-coated chicken, you might want to try peanut-coated chicken — just dip chicken pieces in flour, then in milk, then in ground peanuts and saute in oil and butter.

Toll free hotline aids adoption exchange

The Mississippi Adoption Exchange has a toll free hotline, 1-800-821-9157, for information on adoption of special needs children.

The hotline will enable the adoption exchange, located in Jackson, to be more accessible to families throughout Mississippi.

Children with special needs include school-age black children, white children over the age of ten, sibling groups and children with emotional, physical, intellectual or behavioral problems.

The Mississippi Adoption Exchange, a listing of children who are released for adoption, currently has 68 children.

"The greatest need is for homes for school-age black children, especially boys," said Patti Jones, adoption exchange coordinator with the State Department of Public Welfare.

November has been proclaimed as National Adoption Month, she said.

HOW THE NEW HOSPITAL WILL BE FINANCED...

The construction of a new hospital for Hancock County has been much in the news lately. In order to clarify many points and questions being asked by the public, the Hancock

General Hospital Board of Trustees would like to take this means to answer some of these questions.

Did You Know

1. The replacement facility for Hancock General Hospital will be financed through tax exempt industrial revenue bonds. These bonds will be sold to individual investors through J.C. Bradford & Company of Nashville, Tennessee, investment bankers.
2. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will authorize the sale of the bonds, and the bonds will be repaid through revenue produced by Hancock General Hospital. The county will not be responsible for the debt payments.
3. The industrial revenue bonds will have no effect on the tax base of the county; therefore this project will not require an increase in property taxes.

4. The total cost of the new facility, which will have 60 beds and approximately 55,000-65,000 square feet, will cost an estimated $8-10 million. The debt will have a 25-30 year term.
5. According to a sensitivity study done in April, 1983, by Ernst & Whinney, an accounting firm from New Orleans, if our patient days remain the same, 12,397, through 1986, Hancock General will be able to meet the indebtedness payments. Of course, an increase in patient days with a new facility is imminent, and will produce additional revenue.
6. Ernst & Whinney will also complete a financial feasibility study which will project the ability of Hancock General to repay the debt.

Hancock County Forester

Today, more than ever, forestry has become an increasingly important profession. In the days of the "old timey" Forest Rangers the main goal was to simply protect our forest lands from the severe wildfires that ravaged them.

Now that the wildfire situation is much more under control (we still have plenty of wildfires) foresters work to derive certain benefits from our forests.

Just take Hancock County for example. We used to have several hundred fires each year but now we average only 270.

This wildfire reduction gives foresters and landowners more time and freedom to work with the forest in order to obtain the many benefits it provides.

Forests provide raw wood for our factories, recreation, watershed protection, wildlife habitat and wilderness. Foresters are often able to enhance production of these benefits. This is important to know since millions of Americans own individual tracts of woodland; many have shared in companies that manage forests, and all own the public lands managed by government agencies.

The forestry profession wants to help all these landowners obtain the benefits they want from the forest, but forests have limits in order to gain benefits without harming them.

Originating, growing, and tending stands of trees is called silviculture (silva is the Latin word for forest). Without exaggeration, silviculture is the heartbeat of forestry. It is essential when humans wish to manage the forests—to accelerate the production of wildlife, timber, forage, or to increase recreation and watershed values.

On almost any land whether tree-covered or bare, nature will practice her own silviculture. She may take hundreds or thousands of years to do it, though, and she will do it without consulting humans as to their preferences!

Whether they like to admit it or not, landowners often become impatient with nature's way. Then, silviculture must be practiced.

But in serving landowner purposes, foresters must still work within the natural conditions imposed by a tree species and by its required environment.

The great number of three species found in the United States—multiplied by all the possible growing conditions and all the stand histories—yields an infinite variety of forest scenes. Foresters think in terms of forest type.

For example, in Hancock County we have the pine-hardwood type, the oak-hickory type, the southern bottomland hardwood type, and in many cases the pure pine type.

It should be remembered that even through dominant timber types are used as names, a forest type is actually a community of hundreds of plant and animal species.

A stand of old trees may appear to be timeless, but all forests are constantly changing. Change is most obvious in young stands where the trees are growing real fast.

Such stands are ideal habitat for certain species of wildlife. As the trees grow larger, environmental conditions become so altered that some species of wildlife no longer thrive there, while other wildlife species may find the new conditions excellent.

As the stand continues to age, still other wildlife species become favored in the continuously changing environment. These dynamic changes are natural in all forests.

Quotables by CUEVAS

As you know, sales tax on purchases will increase to six percent starting today in Mississippi.

This increase in sales taxes will remain until June 30, 1984, and then drop to five and one-half percent at that time.

The new increase was passed at the recent special session of the Mississippi Legislature.

There were many reasons for the increase in the sales taxes.

One of the chief reasons was the state's Medicare funds had run completely out, and this would have made tremendous hardships on many of our residents.

Some $10 million of the increase in revenues will go to Medicare, and the $28 million from the Federal Government will be added to it.

Our local Representative J.P. Compretta told us that the state would have lost the $28 million in federal funds for Medicare, if Mississippi would not have provided the $10 million.

Everyone hates to see taxes increased, but apparently it was necessary for our state to survive.

The Annual Hancock County Christmas Tree Lighting is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Sunday evening.

Santa, who has troubles with his reindeer in our warm climate, will transfer to a Bay St. Louis fire engine for his final destination.

The event is sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and is supported by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, and the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Local bands and singing groups are scheduled for the event.

Santa will be taking special requests from youngsters.

We hope to see you all at the Christmas Tree Lighting Sunday.

DISASTER ASSISTANCE

The economic impact of the 1983 drought on agriculture production and whether federal programs have adequately assisted drought-stricken farmers will be assessed at a Senate Agriculture subcommittee hearing chaired by Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) in Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 31.

"I think it's important for us to assess whether our disaster and crop insurance programs have adequately responded to the needs of farmers who are facing serious economic problems as the result of the drought," Cochran said.

The 1983 drought has been labeled the worst in over 50 years and has affected the production of all major farm commodities.

Cochran, who is chairman of the Subcommittee on Agriculture Production, Marketing, and Stabilization of Prices, explained, "This hearing will allow the subcommittee to hear directly from farmers about the effectiveness of our current programs. However, from the comments I've received from across our state, it's obvious Congress is going to have to provide additional help."

Cochran said he is sponsoring legislation that would make several program changes to help farmers adversely affected by the drought, such as deferring loans, make advanced deficiency payments, provide emergency livestock feed, and change operating loan limits.

The Senator commended USDA officials for actions they have already taken to assist farmers in the 28 drought afflicted states. The Department has announced the interest rate on emergency loans will be lowered from 8 percent to 5 percent on the first $100,000, and the Economic Emergency loan program will be reactivated in December.

Invited to testify before the committee are agriculture officials from several mid-South states, as well as area farmers and credit lenders. The hearing will be held at the Holiday Inn Rivermont, beginning at 9 a.m.

Coast Electric employee upset with allegations made in suit against the cooperative

November 28, 1983

Good Heavens, dear Editor!!

My reaction to last Sunday's Echo front page story headlined "Former employees file suit against Coast Electric seeking $2.2 million" was "Oh, my!!"

Too bad the $2.2 m won't be a part of the windfall Christmas shopping that's expected this year. And, if truth and justice prevail, not even two cents of it will ever be awarded, period.

But of greater import than that is the tragedy which has befallen my coffee breaks at work. My coffee breaks used to be filled with the chatter of counted cross stitch, recipe exchanges, and news of the "Who Dat" game.

Now, however, breaks are filled with bets on which one of us will be the quickest to resign in protest should either of two former employees ever be rehired. (Thus far, it looks like we'll all be tied for quickest.)

The Rural Electric Association I work for is special, because the consumer-owners we serve are special. It's great to know that the cooperative I'm employed by works for people and not for profit.

Which is why it is particularly hurtful to me when I perceive that the integrity of my fellow employees and that of the association itself is being threatened by untruths.

It saddens me to think that in an age when utilities are particularly unpopular due to rising energy costs, people without access to the truth might be susceptible to believing any false allegations presented to them by unhappy individuals.

And so I am glad that our general manager is going to present the truth in court, where it will become a matter of public record.

And as a matter of record, let me state that a letter signed by 129 employees in support of management and our general manager resulted strictly from the thoughts and efforts of employees united together.

Sincerely,
Martha L. Van Peak

ABOUT HEPATITIS B

What is Hepatitis B, and how does it differ from Hepatitis A?

Hepatitis B, or serum Hepatitis, is caused by a virus, just as Hepatitis A is, but Hepatitis B is more severe and lasts longer.

In fact, about 10 percent of people who have Hepatitis B will develop chronic liver disease.

Hepatitis B is transmitted through blood or intimate contact. It is not spread by casual contact, such as shaking hands. It is also transmitted by contaminated shellfish and hypodermic needles, especially those used by drug abusers.

Hepatitis A, in contrast, passes through the digestive tract and may be transmitted through the stool of the infected person.

While the symptoms of Hepatitis A and B are similar, those of Hepatitis B appear more gradually and are more severe. They include nausea, loss of appetite, low-grade fever, fatigue, and yellow, or jaundiced, skin and whites of the eyes.

The urine of the infected person turns a dark, tea color and the stool a pale, clay color.

Symptoms appear from two to four weeks after a person has been exposed to Hepatitis A. But symptoms may not appear for a month and may be mistaken for exposure to Hepatitis B, as they appear gradually.

How can you be sure whether your symptoms are those of Hepatitis A or B? Analysis of the blood can determine the existence and severity of the disease.

If you have recently been exposed to Hepatitis A or B, an injection of gamma globulin will lessen the severity of the symptoms.

A vaccine has recently been developed that will prevent Hepatitis B indefinitely. Discuss this prevention with your doctor if you expect to come in contact with someone with Hepatitis B or be exposed to it for instance, if your work involves handling blood or traveling to parts of the world where the disease is prevalent.

However, the vaccine is not effective if you have already had Hepatitis B or have it now.

A small number of people are carriers of Hepatitis B—that is, they no longer have the disease but can still transmit it. A blood test will determine whether a person is a carrier.

Who is at risk for contracting Hepatitis B?

The disease is transmitted most frequently by drug abusers and personal contact. It is common in homosexuals with multiple partners and in female prostitutes. Health workers who handle blood are also at risk. Hepatitis B can be spread by transfusions, but rigorous screening of potential blood donors has greatly reduced the number of these cases.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS STROKE?

A stroke occurs when the blood supply to part of the brain is halted by either a clot, a ruptured vessel or pressure on the blood vessel by a tumor. Strokes are more likely to occur when arteries leading to the brain have been previously damaged by a disease process called hardening of the arteries. Warning signs of a possible stroke may include temporary loss of speech, loss of vision or double vision, unexplained headaches or dizziness. Regular medical checkups are the best protection against strokes. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

IN CONGRESS

HOUSE FOCUSES ON CHILDREN

During the final days of any Congressional session, the legislative pace quickens.

It happened again last week as we worked to end the First Session of the 98th Congress by Thanksgiving. The House approved about 50 bills, many of them under what we call the suspension calendar which is reserved for non-controversial items.

In looking over the week's activity on the floor of the House, it struck me that the legislation we considered covered a wide range of territory. Besides the usual crush of last-minute spending bills in the areas of defense and agriculture, we also gave House approval to veterans associations, maritime safety and wilderness designations.

It also struck me that for one of the few times this year, the House had its attention focused squarely on children, their needs and what to do when they are abused or exploited.

Three separate bills were passed by the House dealing with as many major areas of concern. The first was a tough anti-pornography bill which had been introduced by Congressman Earl Hutto of Florida.

Pornography involving children, much to the disgust of a vast majority, has become a big business enterprise. Such sexual exploitation of minors has been punishable before, but the punishment would be made much more severe under terms of the Hutto bill.

The basic penalty now is a $10,000 fine and/or up to 10 years in prison.

The second area involved child support. Congress has usually taken the attitude that issues of child support and child abuse were best left to local authorities, including courts and social service agencies.

Problems developed, however, when parents crossed state lines, making it difficult to enforce court-ordered child support payments. The Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1983 essentially gives courts the right to withhold child support payments from an individual's paycheck when he has become negligent in paying.

In cases of divorce, for example, where a court has authorized a certain amount of child support, it has been too easy in the past for the father to move out of state and sometimes avoid the payments. This bill makes that type of behavior more difficult.

It is estimated that a million children are abused each year and that between 2,000 and 5,000 die as a direct result of child abuse. The legislation passed by the House would help insure that acts of abuse are detected earlier and appropriate action taken.

I was happy to see the House action in these areas because it addressed growing problems in American life, problems which I hope can be eliminated.

BE A GOOD CITIZEN

People tend to litter where litter has already accumulated. Throwing trash from an automobile, belt, a glass bottle, a metal container, or paper products is like saying to someone else, "Now you litter, too!"

Litter abatement is a goal of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors move toward election for new courthouse-jail complex

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Hancock County residents will have an opportunity to vote for a new courthouse and jail complex, probably to be located on US-90, if the Board of Supervisors follow through on action taken Tuesday morning.

Discussion at a board meeting that morning leaned toward putting two separate issues on the ballot, perhaps at the time of the next Presidential election—one for a new jail only and one for a new courthouse-jail complex.

Supervisor Bert Courge argued that this would give voters a chance to indicate their choice or to vote against both propositions.

After a lengthy heated discussion, the supervisors agreed to authorize Terrence Feeney to contact Bay St. Louis architect Fred Wagner to obtain cost estimates for a new complex.

Supervisor James Travirca voted against the motion, asking "Why should I vote for something when I'm deadset against it and I'm going to fight it and it's going to lose?"

Feeney was chairman for the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility Citizens Committee which spearheaded a November $2.2 million bond election for a new jail.

The issue failed by only .3 percent to obtain the required sixty percent of voter approval.

Board president A.A. (Dolph) Keller, Supervisors Bert Courge and Roger Dale Ladner, and Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise all commented that they had heard people say they voted against the jail issue because they preferred to see a new courthouse included in the issue.

The problem of parking at the courthouse seems to be a major factor, they said.

Travirca disagreed, saying, "I haven't heard it from anyone, except here in this board room."

"I can guarantee one thing," he said. "The people in Bay St. Louis are going to vote against it. If you take the courthouse away, Bay St. Louis is going to dry up."

Cost estimates for a new complex varied from $4 million to $10; with board attorney Walter Gex III saying he felt it would "more than double."

"I want to see a new jail," Gex said. "I don't care if they tack it on to a bombing range."

But he said, "The bond issue failed by less than 50 votes to accomplish a project that would only increase taxes by four percent or less."

"If you go to the same voting public with a 12 to 15 percent increase, are you going to get that 50 votes?"

In other business, the supervisors:

—Increased a contract with Conley, Kite and Eckford by $14,000 for assistance in the reappraisal of personal property in Hancock County;

—Authorized an interest payment of about $7,147 to Economic Development Administration for the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission;

—Authorized advertisement of bids for installation of an electrical duct bank at Stennis International Airport;

—Agreed to split the bids for clay gravel for Beets 4 and 5 between Gerald Shaw and Parker Trucking Co., both for $4.50 per yard;

—Accepted the $1,314 low bid of Markel for materials for storage buildings for Beets 3 and 5;

—Accepted the $8,275 bid of Bernie Ladner for a used Chevrolet cab and chassis; —Approved a request by Travirca to write a letter of recommendation to the US Naval Academy for St. Stanislaus student Frank Letellier;

—Agreed to blacktop about half a mile of Easterbrook Street in Bay St. Louis and about a block of Autry Street in Waveland; in connection with low-cost housing projects being developed by Joseph E. Kirkland III; and —Discussed the need for liability insurance for the jail and other county offices, and asked Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, Necaise and Gex to investigate programs and costs in other counties.

—Heard Election Commissioner John Ladner who said that the commission could have erred in saying there would not be a second primary election.

He said that in his opinion there should have been a run-off election.

But Charles Gottschalk, election commission chairman, told the board that he represented the present consensus of the election committee, that none of the candidates have protested and that another election would have cost the county $9,000.

based on the information given to her by Site Construction Co.

She identified checks made out to James Troy Bennett and William Farve.

Farve, now deceased, was a Site Construction Co. employee who the prosecution charges was taken off the sewer project to assist James Bennett on work at the mayor's home.

Stevenson testified that he was employed by Site Construction Co., owned by Chris Ladner, and that he and Ladner had worked together on a project in Gulfport for Magnolia Construction Project prior to the sewer project in Bay St. Louis.

After Stevenson worked on a Bay St. Louis project for Gregory Construction Co., he went to work for Site Construction as superintendent for '10 or 12' projects, including one on Dunbar Avenue.

He said he okayed daily reports showing how many persons were on the payroll and how many pieces of equipment and how many hours worked, and turned them over to Donn Murray for approval.

The actual reports, he said, were made out by his wife in his presence.

Murray then made copies and gave one back to Stevenson to turn in to Daggett for payment.

"Every day I worked, Donn Murray was on the job," he said.

At this point in Stevenson's testimony, the jury was excluded while Johnson questioned Stevenson about how James Bennett's name got onto the Site Construction payroll.

Owen then asked that the news media be excluded from the proceedings and referred to an article in Gulf Publishing Company's Wednesday morning issue of The Sun which he said "slammed" the mayor and was damaging to his client.

"Let them have the testimony afterwards," he urged, "and they can publish it for 30 days and 30 nights."

"I don't think I have the right to exclude the press," Thomas said. "Noting that he doesn't always like what the media does, he said 'I prefer to have them in the context we have them, rather than like some other countries.'"

Stevenson testified that following a conversation with Donn Murray, he called James Troy Bennett, that Bennett came to see him and that subsequently Bennett did some work on Mayor Bennett's home.

He said he saw James Bennett one time at Larry Bennett's home, doing trim work on the side of a room.

He said that James Bennett was put on the Site Construction payroll, and that when James Bennett asked for an assistant, William Farve was supplied to help him.

Stevenson said he did not remove Farve from the Site Construction payroll, and said James Bennett never did any work on the sewer project.

The jury was out again when Owen successfully argued for introduction of testimony about some of Stevenson's business activities subsequent to August or September, 1978, saying that

"I'm trying to show a pattern of this man's conduct and behavior, to falsify records."

"He falsified these records on his own, because he did it on every other job he ever worked at," Owen stated.

Before the jury, Owen did question Stevenson at length about a house which he built in 1979, consisting of 1,800 or 1,900 square feet, for which he paid $22,000 of $23,000 cash.

Owen also brought out that Stevenson's 1979 W-2 form from Site Construction Co. did not carry Stevenson's correct Social Security number.

Stevenson said he could not remember when he severed his relationship with Site Construction Co.—"I think it was around 1980 or '81."

"Isn't it a fact that Site Construction Co. went out of business because you defrauded them?" Owen asked, and Stevenson said "No" before Johnson could finish his objection.

"Please instruct the witnesses to keep their mouths shut when there's an objection until I rule," Thomas asked, noting that this has been a problem throughout the trial.

James Troy Bennett testified that he has known Stevenson for about 30 years.

The witness said he never worked on the sewer project for Site Construction Co. but that he was asked by Stevenson to come to Bay St. Louis.

James Bennett said he met Donn Murray and subsequently went to Larry Bennett's residence and worked for four or five days doing finishing work on what looked like a new addition to the house.

He testified that William Farve helped him for one day, I believe.

He also testified that he saw Larry Bennett early in the morning on one or two occasions, that Bennett never commented on his work, that Bennett had a "newborn" baby that he showed him one morning.

He said that some of the materials he used were already at the house, and that he purchased some from Point Lumber Company.

On cross-examination, Owen suggested that the work on Mayor Bennett's home had actually been performed in April of 1978, not between

Aug. 21 and Sept. 3.

The "newborn baby," Owen said, was born in March.

"Did you ever see Mrs. Bennett?" Owen asked.

"Yes, I think I saw her once or twice," Bennett said.

"Do you recall if she offered you coffee or something one morning?"

"I don't remember."

"Do you remember Mayor Bennett coming home and asking you to leave the job because you were drunk?"

"Yes, possibly he did."

Then, asked if Bennett had been told by Robert King that the Mississippi Ethics Commission "wanted to run Mayor Bennett out on a rail," Bennett again answered before Judge Thomas could rule on an objection, saying "Yes."

Bennett also testified that King had told him he'd prefer that Bennett not talk to anyone about the case.

In arguing his motion for a directed verdict, Owen said that the prosecution was asking the court to "infer a missing link in the chain of circumstantial evidence."

"The only way the mayor could be guilty of anything would be a conspiracy. They must show a connection between the Mayor, Bennett and Sanitary Landfill," he said.

"There's no way in the world you could have a direct evidence case," Johnson said.

"The case is based on circumstantial evidence, but it is competent evidence and there is sufficient evidence."

"The jury has enough evidence now to bring back a verdict of guilty."

"I agree that it's a circumstantial evidence case," Thomas said, "and it's one of the weakest I've ever seen."

"The most damaging testimony, in my opinion, comes from James Troy Bennett."

Thomas also noted that "Every time someone runs for and gets a public office, anything that happens to him thereafter, it's almost assumed that he's guilty."

"I've put up with more on this case already than I wanted to," Thomas cautioned.

"I would prefer to direct a verdict of not guilty and go home, but I am duty-bound not to."

Thomas left open the possibility that he will direct a verdict when testimony has been completed.

The case will continue at 9:30 a.m. this morning.

The jury of five men and seven women was taken from five empaneled juries of 52 people, 37 of whom were dismissed during the jury selection process.

Letters to Santa

Nov. 28, 1983

Dear Santa Clause,

My name is Amy and I'm five years old.

I want a Happy Returns baby doll, high chair, bed and stroller for my doll, Santa Clause light that glows in the dark, record and tape player combined, speak and spell, clothes for me and my doll, a three wheeler, book shelf, and Jr. Pogo stick.

I've been pretty good. My brother and I will leave you some cookies and milk the night before you come.

Thank you, Santa.

Amy LaFontaine

P.S. I forgot to ask for some records to play on my record player.

Dear Santa,

I hope I am not asking too much but I would love to have Lego blocks and a children's portable cassette player.

If you want to know where to get them from they are located at Kmart.

My name is Nelisha Dawn Hendricks. I am 9 years of age. I live at the address of Rt. 6 Box 896 Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520.

I have been very good my family says. Don't forget my Mom, Dad, and Grandma.

Your friend, Nelisha

P.S. Please write to me back.

EARLY BLOOM

A "furnace" in a plant? Because skunk cabbages often begin to bloom before the snow melts, the plant produces its own heat when blooming, which melts the snow around it, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. This heat also attracts insects that pollinate the plant.

Sun King exhibition set for New Orleans museum

The Sun King, Louis XIV and the New World, an exhibition of more than 200 objects illustrating the life and times of the monarch during whose reign the French explored and administered the vast Louisiana Territory, will open at the Louisiana State Museum, the organizing institution, in New Orleans on April 29.

The exhibition will remain on view through Nov. 18, 1984 and will travel to the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., where it will be on display from Dec. 15, 1984 through April 7, 1985, a museum spokesman says.

The 200 works which comprise the exhibition include paintings, renderings, sculpture, furniture, architectural elements and historical documents.

The majority have never been on display outside of Europe and have been gathered from 28 museums, institutions and private and public collections, including the Louvre, the Musee National du Chateau de Versailles, the Musee des Arts Decoratifs and the Bibliotheque Nationale of Paris.

Among the items on loan for the exhibition are bronze dore' 'Apollo Mask,' the oil on canvas paintings, Rigaud's 'Louis XIV, King of France and Navarre' and 'The Cardinal Richelieu' by Philippe de Champaigne, the tapestry 'Louis XIV Visits Gobelines' and the manuscript of the Treaty of Utrecht. The exhibit will explore the historical, political, religious and artistic setting in which the Sun King reigned.

The exhibition is divided into three themes. The first theme, 'Louis the Man,' will document the formative years of the Sun King, his education, his political and military training, and the combination of events which brought him to power. The private versus public life and image of the King will also be examined.

The second theme, 'Louis as a Patron of the Arts and Sciences,' includes the creation of the Royal Academies which have directed and influenced art training since the 1600's. This section also covers the government's role in promoting the arts and sciences, and the King's personal aesthetic values.

Finally, 'Louis and the Colonies,' focuses on the exploration and administration of colonial territories, particularly Louisiana, and the doctrine of mercantilism.

Commenting on the addition of the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., to the exhibition tour, Robert Macdonald, director of the Louisiana State Museum, remarked, 'We are proud that Louisiana is sending 'The Sun King' to the nation's capital where it can be enjoyed by people who will not have the opportunity to view the exhibition in New Orleans.'

Organized by the Louisiana State Museum with initial funding from the State of Louisiana, the exhibition is curated by Vaughn Glasgow, the Museum's Assistant Director for Special Projects, who is also serving as the exhibition's American Commissioner. The French Commissioner is Pierre Lemoine, Director, Chateau de Versailles, and Inspector General of the Museums of France.

'The Sun King' exhibition will coincide with the Louisiana World Exposition, which will run from May 12 to Nov. 11, 1984.

LEGENDARY—An international tribute to the legendary diva Maria Callas will air on 'Great Performances' at 8:05 p.m. Monday, Dec. 12 on the Mississippi ETV Network. In the program some of the world's greatest singers perform from Milan's La Scala, London's Covent Garden, Paris' L'Opera and Chicago's Lyric Opera.

Small business seminars slated

A winter series of small business management seminars at the University of New Orleans began Tuesday and will continue through Jan. 12.

Each seminar will be conducted from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in room 122 of the UNO Mathematics building, a UNO spokesman reports.

Seminar topics and dates include Dec. 7, 'Cash Budgeting for Small Businesses'; and Jan. 12, 'Loan Packaging and Financial Analysis for Small Businesses.'

Instructors for the respective seminars are Dr. Tarun Mukherjee, UNO associate professor of finance and Dr. Oscar Varela, UNO assistant professor of finance.

'The seminars, designed to sharpen the managerial skills of small-business owners, are being conducted by the UNO Small Business Development Center, one of seven such centers located on university campuses throughout Louisiana. The primary purpose of these centers is to provide small business counseling and research service,' the spokesman explains.

Co-sponsors of the seminar series are the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Council of Independent Businesses. The Chamber of Commerce of New Orleans and the River Region.

Another seminar planned by the UNO center this year is 'Starting and Managing a Woman-Owned Business,' Thursday, at UNO from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

For further information on the seminars, call UNO at (504) 286-6978.

Naman elected head national dental group

Dr. Lewis J. Naman of Mobile was recently elected president of the American Academy of Implant Dentistry.

His election came at the annual world assembly of the academy in Washington, D.C.

Naman has served the past year as president-elect of the 350-member academy. It includes dentists from 40 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Mexico and 10 other countries.

Naman is the husband of Marsha Blaise, formerly of Bay St. Louis and is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Blaise.

The Naman's have one son, Edmond, and four daughters, Helen, Andrea, Marcia, and Regina—they reside in Mobile.

He reported the effluent is not a health hazard, but stated, "The idea that there is treated sewage in a recreation area isn't very palatable."

Many of the Jourdan residents at the hearing objected to the municipalities dumping sewage away from their boundaries in an unincorporated residential area with no political representation on city boards.

Several of the objectors also reported when they questioned surveyors, marking the proposed route of the Waveland outfall line, they either dodged questions regarding the purpose of the survey or said the work was to mark the rights-of-way for a new road.

The 201 and 208 plans were prepared by the district's engineering firm, Lewis-Eaton Partnership of Jackson, which apparently directed or conducted the survey.

Ray Eaton of the firm, the official engineering organization of record for the district, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

In reference to the cities dumping treated sewage in the Jourdan, Mike Reynolds who lives on the river about 300 feet from the proposed Waveland outfall point said, "I don't want their sewage in my back yard."

"This situation makes taxation without representation seem like a mere misdemeanor," he stated.

Ethel Buleaux of Canal Street was one of several Jourdan residents who posed the rhetorical question of 'why can't the sewage be dumped in the Mississippi Sound near Waveland.'

Royals reiterated Wednesday that discharging treated sewage in the sound would result in shellfish accumulating bacteria to the point where they would be unfit for human consumption.

He said government standards for recreation areas such as the Jourdan are not as rigid as for shellfish areas such as the sound.

BPC computer models show that the effluent from secondary treatment systems such as Bay St. Louis and Waveland 'will in no way degrade' Jourdan River.

He explained the secondary systems remove solids and certain 'organic material' found in human wastes then treats the remaining fluid with chlorine to destroy most bacteria.

Some residents at the hearing questioned why tertiary waste treatment systems are not proposed for the two cities.

Royals also explained Wednesday that tertiary treatment is much more expensive because sewage must be aerated to speed the mortality of bacteria discharged in effluent.

He said a tertiary system is not necessary for the Jourdan outfalls because the river itself would perform this final function.

"Secondary treatment is all that is necessary and will in no way degrade the river," he stated.

The division chief added that the BPC would probably suggest that another local hearing be conducted before the 201 and 208 plans are accepted by state and federal agencies.

The Waveland District Board of Directors consists of Mayors John Longo of Waveland and Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis and A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, County Board of Supervisors president.

Entrepreneur seminar offered

The Mississippi Research and Development Center will offer an entrepreneur development seminar Monday and Tuesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College, Jeff Davis Campus at the corner of Switzer and DuBuisson Road, Room D-110 in Gulfport.

Seminar director, Van Evans, says the two-night workshop will analyze the '83 M's' an entrepreneur should consider in owning and operating a business, including management, marketing, manpower, machinery, materials, and money.

Evans is the manager of the new ventures branch at the R & D Center.

The registration fee, which includes instruction and seminar materials, is $20.

For registration information, contact Marie Dean at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Park Campus in Long Beach by telephoning 864-3302.

Cosponsors of the seminar are the Mississippi Small Business Development Center and the Small Business Administration.

we are working on, and the negotiations are in a delicate stage," he continued.

"We are still negotiating for stops in Waveland, Pass Christian and Long Beach," Wilcox added.

"I'll be in Washington Dec. 8 and I'll let you know the final arrangements as soon as I get back," Wilcox promised.

According to a report filed by the Medill News Service in Washington Wednesday, Amtrak has confirmed the train will consist of a diesel engine, two 84-seat coaches and a food service car.

Amtrak President Graham Claiborne told Medill, "We look forward to making this train as great a success as we possibly can."

"If suddenly we discover the people need five coaches, we'll scrape them up," Claiborne added.

The train will be funded jointly by Amtrak, Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama.

Amtrak will pay 55 percent of a projected $761,000 operating cost, with the three states sharing the remainder.

Claiborne said continuation of the service beyond the five-month World's Fair period will depend upon the three states' ability to continue the funding.

Late Nelius Rhodes' great-nephew takes class title in memorial lift

Three members of the St. Stanislaus Weightlifting Club took honors in the recent first annual Nelius Rhodes Memorial Powerlifting Championships in Gulfport.

Some 72 participants from five states entered the event which is dedicated to the memory of the late Judge Nelius Rhodes of Bay St. Louis.

International powerlifting champion Doc Rhodes, the judge's son and owner of Rhodes' Fitness Center in Gulfport, was sponsor of the meet.

Rusty Adams, SSC sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Adams of Bay St. Louis and great-nephew of the judge, placed first in the 114 pound class.

Adams set personal records in the three required lifts—236-pound squat, 132-pound-bench press, and 259-pound deadlift for a total of 627 pounds.

Placing second in the 132-pound class was Jim Ryan, Pearl River College sophomore, with a total of 639 pounds.

Participating in his first competitive meet, Ryan posted individual lift figures of 215-pound squat, 165-pound bench, and 259-pound deadlift, according to Brother Bennett, SSC weightlifting Club coach. SSC 11th grader Ed Friloux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Friloux of Bay St. Louis, weighed in at 95 pounds and took a third place title with a total of 534 pounds.

With the Rhodes event also his first competition, Friloux benched 115 pounds, squatted with 204 pounds, and deadlifted 215 pounds.

The SSC club placed third overall, behind the Enterprise (Ala.) Power Team, first, and Rhodes Fitness Center second.

FISH EYES

At midday, when the sun is overhead, a fish can see objects perhaps 15 to 20 feet away in clear, shallow water, says International Wildlife magazine. When the sun is not directly overhead, little light passes through to illuminate the underwater scene, and fish must rely on their excellent senses of smell, hearing and touch.

Eagle grid squad posts winning '83

Although Southern Mississippi's Golden Eagles dropped their last two games of the 1983 grid season to Alabama and East Carolina, the final report card on the 1983 campaign should give Coach Jim Carmody and his squad excellent grades for the 7-4 record they achieved.

"Not many people gave the Eagles a chance for a winning season in 1983, yet they responded with their second straight 7-4 mark, USM's seventh straight non-losing season," a team spokesman says.

Carmody became only the second coach in USM history to win 14 games in his first two seasons. The other coach to achieve that distinction was Reed Green, who was 7-3 in 1936 and 7-2 in 1937, his first two seasons as a head coach.

In 1983 the Eagles recorded victories over Richmond, Louisiana Tech, Ole Miss, Mississippi State, Memphis State, Southwestern Louisiana and Louisville and lost to Auburn, Tulane, Alabama and East Carolina.

The year's offensive hero was speedy wide receiver Louis Lipps, a senior from Reserve, La. Lipps paced the squad in pass receiving with a career high 42 for 800 yards (19.0 average) and five TDs.

He concluded his career as the school's second all-time leader in pass receptions and pass receiving yardage with 91 catches for 1,477 yards.

Junior tailback Sam De-jarnette from Selma, Ala. was the squad's leading rusher for the second straight year with 178 carries for 795 yards and seven touchdowns.

Freshman tailback Vincent Alexander of Covington, La. ranked second with 103 carries for 551 yards and two touchdowns.

Second behind Lipps in pass receiving was red-shirt freshman Lynael Alston, a split end from Theodore, Ala., who grabbed 11 for 235 yards (21.4 average), including touchdown catches of 74 and 62 yards.

Senior tight end Jim Brown of Birmingham, Ala. ranked third with 10 catches for 119 yards (11.9 average).

Junior quarterback Robert Duckworth of Biloxi led the squad in both passing and total offense. He completed 71 of 141 passes for 1,201 yards and finished the season with 1,490 total yards for an average of 135.5 yards per game.

Alexander finished the year as the squad's top kickoff returner with seven for a 33.9 yard average and the freshman had a 96-yard return against Alabama, fourth longest in school history.

In the kicking department senior Steve Clark from Jonesboro, Ga. connected on 25 of 26 extra points and 16 of 26 field goals to lead the team in scoring with 73 points, while senior Larry Boyd of Columbus, Ga. was the top punter on the squad with 60 kicks for a 40.5 average.

Strong safety Bud Brown, a senior from DeKalb, finished the year as the team's leading tackler with 123 (50 solo & 73 assists). Senior linebacker Greg Kelley of Biloxi was next with 118 (76 solo & 42 assists), followed by senior nose guard Gerald Baylis of Jackson and junior defensive end Chris Jackson, with 92 each and junior linebacker Greg Haeusler of Destin, Fla. with 90.

Baylis and Brown tied for the team lead in tackles for losses with five. Jackson led in quarterback sacks with 10 and Brown deflected 10 passes to lead the squad in this category.

Sophomore cornerback James Cooper of Raymond was tops in interceptions with four, one of which he returned 38 yards for a touchdown. Senior cornerback Bruce Miller of Ackerman was next with three.

The Eagles were most productive in the second quarter in 1983, scoring 66 points in that period. They scored 65 in the fourth, 60 in the first and 44 in the third.

Defensively, they were toughest to score on in the first quarter, yielding only 14 points. They gave up 26 in the third, 40 in the second and 48 in the fourth.

USM averaged 214.3 yards rushing and 125.3 yards passing for a total of 339.5 yards per game and 21.4 points per contest.

REWARD

UNCLAIMED SCHOOL SEWING MACHINES

Necchi's Education department placed orders in anticipation of previous year sales. Due to budget cuts these sales were unclaimed. These machines must be sold! All machines offered are the most modern machines in the Necchi line. These machines sew on all fabrics: Levi's, canvas, upholstery, nylon, stretch, vinyl, silk. EVEN SEW ON LEATHER! These machines are new with a 25 year warranty. With the new 1983 Necchi 322 machine, you just set the color-coded dial and see magic happen: straight sewing, zigzag, buttonholes (any size), invisible blind hem, monogram, satin stitch, embroidery, applique, sew on buttons and snaps, topstitch elastic stitch, professional serging stitch, straight stretch stitch... all of this and more, without the need of old fashioned cams or programmers. Your price with this ad, $198. Without this ad, $429. Your checks are welcome.

Bay Little Theatre to host state competition in Biloxi Saturday

Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will host the 1983 Mississippi Theatre Conference festival in Biloxi Saturday.

Bay St. Louis Little Theatre has been represented in the conference's state theatre competition for the past three years, winning in both 1981 and 1982.

Laurie Byrd directed Rusty Blackwell and Mike Cuevas to win in 1981 with 'The Seahorse' and again in 1982 with 'Echos.'

Both productions were entered also in Southeastern Theatre Conference competition.

Mike Cuevas was elected vice president of the state group in 1982 and has been responsible for organizing this year's festival which will be staged in the Biloxi High School.

The festival is for both secondary school competition and community theatre.

The high schools participating from the Coast are Coast Episcopal and Mercy Cross.

In addition to the competition, workshops and special performances by the Vicksburg Theatre Guild and the Ellenville Handicapped

School acting troupe will be presented.

The public is invited.

"We hope that the local community theatres and high schools will become involved in this festival and continue to be involved and participate in the years to come," said Mike Cuevas.

Registration fee is $5 which will cover the performance and workshops.

Registration opens at 7 a.m. Saturday.

Performances in the secondary school competition begins at 8 a.m. and run until 12:30 p.m.

Workshops will be conducted in the afternoon followed by Mississippi Theatre Association meetings.

One wishing to join MTA may do so then and participate in the election of officers.

Christ Episcopal Day School sponsors Pass field day

SHOWING OFF THEIR RIBBONS—From three and four-year-olds, from left, Richard Mestayer of Waveland and Alan Uram, Sanders Kane and Kippy Chamberlain, all of Bay St. Louis show ribbons won in field day activities.

Each year students from the Early Education Center and the Elementary School of Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis take part in a field day.

This year's event was held in the gymnasium and on the grounds of Coast High School on the Pass Christian campus.

Gaynell Ambrose and Lambert Boyd organized the day's activities.

Parents of the students lent a hand to help conduct the games and contests.

SACK RACE CONTESTANTS—Competing in the sack race are, from left, sixth graders Scott Hourin of Diamondhead, Billy Gulce of Biloxi and Jeffy Gomez of Pearl River.

TUG-OF-WAR—Pulling hard for a win are kindergartners, from left, Marcie Williams of Bay St. Louis, Julie Flower of Pass Christian, and Darlene Anderson and David Matteson, both of Diamondhead.

OVER AND UNDER RELAY—Gilly Chamberlain of Bay St. Louis passes the ball to Danielle Gobert of Diamondhead while Jamie Turcotte of Diamondhead, Rachel Pope of Bay St. Louis and Vanessa Pierce of Long Beach stand at the ready.

TOSSING THE FRISBEE—Parent Ann Gulce stands by while Whitney White of Diamondhead displays her expertise and fellow third graders Lucy Lindsay of Long Beach, Carolyn Watts of Bay St. Louis and Nikki Pagano of Pass Christian line up to take their turns.

Bay Junior High FHA to host spring district meet

Bay Junior High Future Homemakers of America will serve as the host school for the spring FHA Gulf Coast District meeting in the Coliseum in Biloxi.

The fall district meeting was held Oct. 29 at McNeil Junior High School in Picayune, with the theme of "Family and Future."

Earlier this year, Bay Junior High FHA officers attended the annual Gulf Coast District planning meeting, also in Picayune, to plan the two conferences which all Bay Junior High FHA members at-

Overall theme for both meetings is "A New Beginning." FHA Reporter Melissa Harvill, 13, of Waveland says the group is making a special effort this year to make people aware that the purpose of FHA is to help the community.

State vo-tech funded for industry training

The Governor's Office of Job Development Training, a division of State and Federal Programs, has given the State Department of Education, Vocational-Technical Division, $275,000 to subsidize custom training programs for new or expanding businesses.

This money will enable vo-tech industrial services to offer custom-made training programs to more companies that want to develop or expand in Mississippi.

The purpose of custom training is to train people rapidly to perform skills for a specific employer. This custom job training program has proven to be a key element in attracting companies to this state, experts say.

The coordinated effort between vocational-technical education and the Governor's office will benefit the state because more custom training can be offered, said Johnny Tynes, state supervisor of industrial training.

And, if all of this money is used and more is needed, vo-tech can request additional funding, said Mike Thomas, state vo-tech supervisor of federal programs.

For additional information, phone Tynes or Thomas at 359-3470.

Ranger Rick's quick quiz on lightning

When Benjamin Franklin walked into a field with a kite, a string and an iron key, he was lucky he lived to tell about what happened.

He was trying to find out everything he could about lightning, and he did, according to Ranger Rick, the children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

But he realized he could have been killed by the electricity in lightning. In fact, a person who later tried to repeat Franklin's experiment died during that re-creation.

Here's a quiz of little-known facts about lightning, taken from Ranger Rick:

1. What type of lightning is most common?
 - a. Lightning that occurs inside a cloud;
 - b. Cloud-to-cloud lightning;
 - c. Cloud-to-ground lightning.
2. How long is a bolt of lightning?
 - a. A few yards (meters);
 - b. 8 miles (13 km)
 - c. 100 miles (160 km)
 - d. Any of the above
3. How hot is a bolt of lightning?
 - a. As hot as boiling water;
 - b. As hot as the surface of the sun;
 - c. More than twice as hot as the surface of the sun.
4. Why do you always see lightning before you hear thunder?
 - a. A lightning bolt makes the air around it very hot, very fast. When the hot air hits the cooler air surrounding it, a booming sound is heard.
 - b. Clouds that are charged with electricity bump together.
 - c. Does lightning happen when there isn't a thunderstorm?
 - d. Does lightning ever strike the same place more than once?
5. What causes thunder?
 - a. A lightning bolt makes the air around it very hot, very fast. When the hot air hits the cooler air surrounding it, a booming sound is heard.
 - b. Clouds that are charged with electricity bump together.
 - c. Does lightning happen when there isn't a thunderstorm?
 - d. Does lightning ever strike the same place more than once?
6. If you're outdoors in a thunderstorm, you should NOT
 - a. Seek shelter under a single tree;
 - b. Stand in a field or on top of a hill;
 - c. Keep swimming or boating;
 - d. Do any of the above.
7. If you're indoors in a thunderstorm, you should NOT
 - a. Stand in the door or near a window;
 - b. Take a bath;
 - c. Talk on the telephone; or
 - d. Do any of the above.

SPEC. 4 WILEY
Spec. 4 John R. Wiley, son of Helen Graham of Rural Route 2, Poplarville, and John R. Wiley Sr. of 4365 Randolph Ave., New Orleans, has been decorated with the second award of the Army Achievement Medal at Fort Bragg, N.C.

The medal is awarded to soldiers for achievement, meritorious service or acts of courage.

Wiley is a storage specialist, 1st Corps Support Command. His wife, Barbara, is the daughter of Judge and Loella Flood of 232 Sycamore St. in Bay St. Louis.

The specialist received an associate degree in 1976 from Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville.

LARRY KOENNEN invites all of his friends needing a car or truck to visit him at:

FRANK HILLE CHEVROLET OLDSMOBILE, INC.

U.S. Hwy. 90 - Bay St. Louis

Century III Leader selected at HNC

By Nancy Nease
HNC Student
Council Reporter

Mark McLaughlin, a senior at Hancock North Central High School, has been named the school's top Century III Leader, according to D. E. Hillman, principal.

The 17-year-old student is now eligible to compete with other local winners from around the state for one of two $1,500 scholarships and an all-expense paid trip to the Century III Leaders National Conference, March 25-26 in Colonial Williamsburg, Va.

State winners will compete for the national winner's prize of an additional $10,000 scholarship.

The Century III Leaders program is designed to bring together and recognize student leaders who show both strong leadership abilities and an interest in the future of America.

McLaughlin was judged on the basis of leadership skills, school and community involvement, and a current events examination. He also wrote a short essay on a particular issue that challenges America in its third century.

Runners-up in the competition received letters of commendation from Mr. Hillman.

This is the ninth year of the Century III Leaders program which awards a total of $218,500 in scholarships to 204 young leaders. Century III is sponsored and administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by the Shell Companies Foundation, Inc.

The 1983-84 HNC Volleyball Team closed out the 1983 season with a record of 5-6.

The B-Team's record was 4-3. Some of the teams they defeated were Bay High, Mercy, Cross, OLV, and Pascagoula.

HNC's team has only competed for two years officially. The Hawkettes worked hard this summer and after school. They were coached by Mrs. Myrna Gregory of Kiln.

The team consisted of five seniors, Patti Moran, Cammie Smith, Gwen Ladner, Robin Jenny and Angela Thigpen; two juniors, Tina Nease and Denise Mendoza; one sophomore, Tabitha Stewart; and three freshmen, Wendy Stewart, Joell Evert and Tammy Ladner.

Teacher of the Week
Week is Mrs. Nancy Storey of Gulfport, an English teacher at HNC.

She is originally from Kosciusko and is sponsor of the Junior Class.

Her hobbies include painting, drawing, crafts, and bicycling.

Mrs. Storey has been teaching for ten years, four of which have been at HNC.

She attended Mississippi College for four years majoring in English/art and received her bachelor of arts degree.

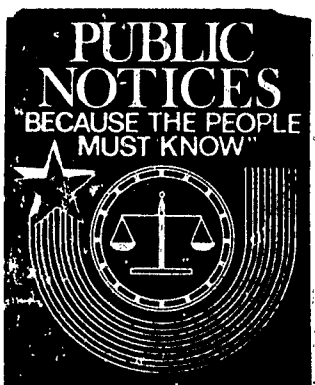

Brief

OPTOMETRISTS CONFAB
Mississippi optometrists will have the opportunity to hear one of the profession's foremost authorities on optometry and the law during the Mississippi Optometric Association's 28th annual education conference in December.

The conference will be Dec. 4-6 at the E. F. Yerby Center for Continuing Education at The University of Mississippi and will be coordinated by the Ole Miss Division of Continuing Education.

Lead-off speaker for the conference will be Dr. John Gather Class of Birmingham, Ala., one of Alabama's leading trial lawyers.

Additional information on the conference is available from the Division of Continuing Education, University, Miss. 38677 or telephone 232-7282.

School of Communications at USM approved by board

The Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning has approved the establishment of the School of Communications at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The school, composed of the Departments of Journalism; Radio, Television and Film; and Speech Communication, has over 550 undergraduate majors and 75 graduate students.

"The designation of the School of Communication gives the entire area the visibility in the state and region necessary for growth in enrollment and quality of instruction," says USM President Dr. Aubrey Lucas.

In 1981 the Board of Trustees gave USM the leadership role in communication in Mississippi and communication was designated one of three centers of academic excellence on the USM campus.

The idea for the centers of academic excellence was created by the Legislature to allow each college to work toward achieving regional and national recognition in three academic areas, a USM spokesman says.

USM is already widely recognized, says Dr. Gene Wiggins, director of the School, who reports USM has one of the larger doctoral programs in communication in the Southeast with 34 students.

"We were seeking a formal structure that would give this division of liberal arts more visibility," says Wiggins.

"This will give us more opportunities and allow us to grow. We can now more easily attract scholars for the faculty, grants and gifts from government and industry, and the attention of students seeking a professional education in some area of communication," he explains.

Several faculty positions have already been added, bringing the total up to 25, and Wiggins hopes to add more in the coming year.

"Our graduate programs have experienced tremendous growth since 1981 and our undergraduate programs are progressing at a satisfactory pace," says Wiggins.

Creating a school of communication keeps the programs at USM competitive with regional universities such as the University of Tennessee, Florida State University and the University of Alabama which have created such units, and seen growth in their enrollments and enhanced the quality of their programs as a result, he explains.

"Hopefully the change will bring more cohesiveness and coordination among the three departments within the School of Communication," says Terry Harper, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Additions to the school include a new Reference Room and a Graphics Lab with desks and equipment for students in layout and design classes in journalism and advertising.

The school offers Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degrees in advertising, communication, journalism, radio, television and film, and speech communication.

Master of Arts or Master of Science degrees are available in Communication and Public Relations. The Doctor of Philosophy degree is offered in Communication.

BLACK ALUMNI Officials at The University of Mississippi are trying to contact black alumni who have not provided current addresses to the University's Alumni Association.

"As part of a continuing effort to get all alumni to keep the university informed of their current addresses, we are trying to contact all black alumni who are not active members of the association," says Ardesa Minor, assistant dean of students.

"We are asking them to write to me at the assistant dean of students office, University, Miss. 38677, or The University of Mississippi Alumni Association, University, Miss. 38677," Minor says.

IT'S A FACT

There are only two investor-owned electric utilities in the state—Mississippi Power Company, which is headquartered in Gulfport, and Mississippi Power & Light Company (MP&L), which is located in Jackson. The names are similar sounding, but compared with MP&L, Mississippi Power has a different service area, different customers, different generating plants, different rates, and different investors. In fact, about the only thing we have in common is the product we both sell.

In Southeast Mississippi the name's Mississippi Power. And that's all there is to it.

Pre-registration at USM begins today

A pre-registration for new students entering the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg for the spring semester will be today, Dec. 6 and 8.

The entire registration process will be completed except for housing assignments and payment of fees, all of which will be completed on the first day of spring registration, a university spokesman says.

"Pre-registration allows students to select courses and time schedules prior to regular registration. Advisors will be available for counseling and evaluation of credits will be completed for transfer students," the spokesman explains.

New freshmen and transfer students interested in USM's pre-registration should call for an appointment (601) 266-4759 or toll free in Mississippi 1-800-222-1604.
